

SANGER LEDGE PICKED UP.

After Running Through a Fault 215 Feet in Length.

After cutting through a fault of 215 feet, the old Sanger ledge has been picked up again, rich as ever, and so far as developed, as wide as on the other side of the fault.

Last winter this property was taken in bond from the Bradley estate, of Milwaukee, by a company of Washington people, who placed it in charge of J. K. Romig, superintendent of the Maxwell mine. Mr. Romig first had the property pumped out, and then laid his plans for development. Advice was plentiful. Some thought the only way to get values from the Sanger was to go on the other side of the hill, and enter it down near Eagle creek, that the water might be drawn off and a tunnel proposition be had instead of the shaft.

It now appears that depth was not sought. Mr. Romig had a model made of the mine, carefully noting the surface proportions of the fault. From this he made his underground surveys, figuring at what angle he would have to turn on the 400-foot level to reach the ledge on the other side of the fault. So accurately did he figure this out that instead of striking the ledge at 220 feet, he found it at 215. It was tapped only three days ago, and has not been crosscut entirely yet. A width of six feet has been made through it, with the other wall showing up. Ore is rich, from all indications. It is estimated there is 600 feet of the ledge open to development, which, cut at a depth of 400 feet, and if it averages six feet in width, will give an immense body of ore.

A force of 20 miners is employed and about 15 woodcutters. Increases will be made in the working force soon, and about July the 10-stamp mill on the property will be opened. The battery of this mill is in good condition, but new vanners will have to be put in.

Great interest is created throughout the Sanger district by the strike. For a long time the Sanger has been idle, as the former operator drove for the ledge but miscalculated in the fault, and did not approach the ore nearer than 10 feet.

A rich shoot of ore has been struck in the Whitaker group, near the Sanger mine. A force of men are driving on the ledge, the tunnel now being in 300 feet. At this point some very rich ore is being taken out, going high in free-milling gold. The tunnel is now gaining depth rapidly, and as the ore shoot improves in depth, the owners are sanguine of a good property.—Special to the Telegram from Baker City.

Cattlemen Organize Against Rustlers.

A stock association was recently organized in the Middle Fork country to which nearly every cattle man of Ritter and Dale and a large number from Long Creek belong. The officers are: George McPherson, president, and V. B. Peterson, secretary. Every cattleman in that section complains of having lost quite a number of cattle in the past as a result of being driven from the range or stolen outright. This they intend to put a stop to. The members of the association will meet again the last Saturday of May and will employ three men at a salary of $75 per month to ride the range during the months of June, July, August and September, and keep a close watch after the cattle of all members of the association. The step taken by the cattlemen of the Middle Fork is proper and should be followed by a similar organization in every section of Grant county. The stock lost each season by cattle owners will more than pay the expenses of the organization.—Blue Mountain Eagle.

Electricity, however, will help every time, because it not only soothes and quiets the tired or worn-out nerves, but also because it creates a more vigorous circulation of the blood into the weakened spots that need repair. With the advice that I can give you as a specialist of thirty years' practice, and my latest electro-therapeutic appliance, the
